royal bosom the affliction of a whole nation. Your royal prerogatives have given your Majesty the means of establishing between the different powers of the State that constitutional harmony which is the essential condition of the strength of the throne, and the grandeur of France."—Times, March 22.

Whatever may be said against the policy of the decisive step which the French Ministry have taken, it must be allowed, even by their antagonists themselves, that their conduct has been quite legal and constitutional. The Chamber declares in its address that it does not concur in the views of the KING'S Ministers, and asks His Majesty to choose between his servants and the delegates of his people. His Majesty expresses regret at the disagreement, and, having made his option to retain his

WE have to announce the death of Admiral Sir ELIAS HARVEY, M. P. for Essex, who, after a lingering illness of many years' continuance, departed this life, at his seat, Rolls, near Chigwell, on Saturday last. He had experienced no relapse on his former complaint, and for several

On Tuesday morning the body of a female was found in the New River, at Chesapeake, which apparently had been but a short time in the water. A white handkerchief was found over her face and bonnet; and this morning a jury assembled to inquire into the facts of the case. In the pocket of the dress was found a book, a book of hymns, a book of psalms, a book of tracts, and a book of...
